

S&P Global Market Intelligence Business Relationships Dataset

The S&P Global Business Relationships dataset is part of S&P Global's suite of relationship mapping datasets which identifies and classifies connections among global companies helping to build out a comprehensive view of all the interdependent parties in a company's ecosystem.

S&P Global Market Intelligence collects and maintains business relationships information for public companies, subsidiaries of public companies, and some private companies that issue debt in public transactions using a multi-faceted approach that includes cyclical validation of company reports, web content mining, utilising S&P Capital IQ-collected Key Developments data and company surveys.

Combined with the Handshakes network mapping capabilities, this dataset presents a wide range of companies and their customer/supplier relationships, strategic alliances and competitor relationships.
